ANOTHER FIGHT OVER TREE BILL

Claim of Forestry Association Finally Allowed After Appeal was Taken From Chair.

WOULD NOT PUT QUESTION

Mayor Black Refused to Present the Matter When Motion Was Made—
Parsons Won Out.

Only two members of the city council and the mayor turned out for the regular meeting last night and in order to give the city employees their money for the past two weeks a special meeting was held this afternoon at one-thirty o'clock. The meeting this afternoon was attended by Councilmen Kelley, Moore and Parsons.

Even with only three councilmen present the session did not get by without the usual set-to between Dr. Parsons and Mayor Black. The mayor and the doctor had a nice little argument over the long standing bill of the State Forestry Association against the city for repairing the trees in the city park. The bill has commonly been called the tree doctors bill. The tree doctors bill was among those read by the clerk.

When the special appropriation ordinance was passed over the mayor's veto appropriating $500 for the city park it was agreed that Dr. Parsons should make an effort to cut the tree doctor's bill from $493.55 to $400 if he could. After the bills were read Dr. Parsons moved that the council cut the bill to $400. Mayor Black ruled him out of order stating that the business before the council was the allowing of the bills. The mayor was in favor of allowing all the bills with the exception of the tree doctors' claim.

Mayor Black made one grand stand against allowing the bill and lost as Dr. Parsons and Councilman Moore formed a majority. When Mayor Black refused to listen to Dr. Parsons' motion to cut the bill to $400 and appeal from the chair was asked. Mayor Black even refused to put the appeal before the council for a vote, stating that he was out of it and was backed up in his stand by City Attorney Howard Barrett.

After a long wait in which the mayor held firm to his decision that he was "out of it," Dr. Parsons succeeded in getting the appeal by having the clerk call the roll. Dr. Parsons held that the mayor was compelled to put the question of an appeal from the chair before the house for a vote as is always customary in all parliamentary proceedings. The appeal from the chair was sustained when Clerk Cauley called for the vote. Councilmen Parsons and Moore voted in favor of the appeal and Kelley against it.

With this out of the way Councilman Parsons proceeded with the original motion which was to cut the bill from $493.50 to $400. Mayor Black again ruled Councilman Parsons out of order and refused to have anything to do with the question. He held that since an appeal was taken from the chair the chair was not supposed to put the question. "I do not understand," said Dr. Parsons, "how the mayor gets the idea that he is a czar." With the clerk calling the roll the motion to cut the bill was carried by the same vote that carried the appeal from the chair.

Dr. Parsons then moved that the bills be allowed. Mayor Black ruled him out of order as he did not want to allow the bill for the city park. The motion was then changed to include all claims against the city ex-

PIONEER OF RUSH COUNTY EXPIRES

Mrs. Jefferson Churchill, Age 76
Years, Dies Today From Complication of Diseases.

LAST OF EIGHT CHILDREN

Mrs. Jefferson Churchill, age seventy-six years, died early this morning of a complication of diseases following an illness of several weeks. She suffered from gall stones, cancer of the liver and kidney trouble. Dr. John B. Long of Indianapolis, her nephew, said that no doctor on earth could have saved Mrs. Churchill. She had been taking treatment at the Sexton's sanitorium.

Mrs. Churchill was born in this county in November, 1837, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Reeve. She is the last of a family of eight children, being the youngest. The next youngest child was the late J. B. Reeve. She and Mr. Churchill were married January 13, 1856. Four children were born, but only one is alive. They have lived in 421 North Morgan street thirty-six years. Mrs. Churchill was a member of the Main Street Christian church.

Mrs. Churchill is survived by her husband and one son, Earl, of Denver, Colorado, who has been at his mother's bedside, but left only last night. He was reached by wire and was expected to arrive tonight. The funeral will be held at the residence Friday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock with the Revs. C. M. Yocom of the Christian church and A. D. Batchelor of the Methodist church in charge.

HUSBAND CALLED HER A "BLOCKHEAD"

This is Allegation of Divorce Complaint Filed Today by Elma
Prather Against William.

DEMANDS $100 AS ALIMONY

Because her husband abused her and called her a "blockhead," according to the allegations of the complaint, Mrs. Elma Prather, 356 East Tenth street, today brought suit in the circuit court through her attorneys, Watson, Titworth & Green, for a divorce from her husband, William Prather. Mrs. Prather is living with her parents here.

The complaint sets forth that they were married in Anderson, June 18, 1910, and that he abandoned her in August, 1912. She alleges that he has failed to provide for her so that she had to seek shelter at the home of her parents. She demands the restoration of her maiden name, Elma Loucks and a hundred dollars alimony.

2ND HOME MISSION SERMON

Rev. J. B. Meacham Points Out That We Are All Immigrants Difference Being Some Came First.

"We can't talk about immigrants without talking about ourselves," said the Rev. John B. Meacham of the First Presbyterian church, in preaching last night on the subject, "The Menace of Immigration," at the second of the series of Home Mission week union services at the First Baptist church.

"So then," he continued, "what I may say you may take unto yourselves whatever you like and leave the remainder for the rest of the immigrants because we are all immigrants. The only difference is that we got here first. We immigrated about five hundred years ago, that is indirectly through our ancestors, although you may think some of us did."

The third meeting of the series will be held tonight at seven-thirty at the St. Paul M. E. church and the subject of the address will be, "Assimilation of the Immigrant." The Rev. S. G. Huntington pastor of the First Baptist church will be the speaker. The meeting Thursday night will be held at the Main Street Christian church and the Rev. A. D. Batchelor of the St. Paul M. E. church will speak on the topic, "The Immigrant in the West."

The Rev. Mr. Meacham declared last night that the immigrant question is by far the most important one in the United States today. He said there were lots of storms passed over Washington, D. C., over the currency and tariff questions, but that none of these was the equal of this far-reaching one.

The minister said there are twenty-five million immigrants and sixteen million school children in the United States. He pointed out that the immigrants were little better, if any, than school children.

He showed from statistics that 85 per cent. of the people employed in packing houses are immigrants and that the following per cents in the given occupations came here from foreign countries: seven-tenths in bituminous coal mining 85 per cent in the wool business, nine-tenths in cotton trade, nineteen-twentieths in the manufacture of clothing, four-fifths in the shoe manufactures, one-half in the making of gloves and nineteen-twentieths in the sugar business.

"The immigrant has cast his lot with us," he continued, "and there is no need to retreat. He is here to stay and we must face what we are going to do with him besides putting him to work. He is holding the industrial burden on his shoulders now. It is primarily a northern question. The north will no more be free of the immigrant than the south will be free of the negro."

The pastor declared that so long as the American spirit predominates, American institutions are not in danger of the influence of immigration, but when that spirit decays, it will be a woeful day. He asserted that immigration is no more a menace to American institutions and government than is America a menace to the immigrant.

He said that the menace of the immigrant to America is based on his ignorance of our institutions and customs. He asked the audience to continue on page 2.

$15,000 DAMAGE SUIT STARTED

Jury Obtained and Evidence Introduced in Case Alleging Slander Against James Archey.

DEFENDANT FIRST WITNESS

Great Array of Legal Talent on Both Sides and Hard Fight Will be Made.

The $15,000 damage suit of Samuel Matthews, John G. Hammond and John E. Booth, doing business under the firm name of the Milroy Stock company against James P. Archey, alleging slander, started in the circuit court this morning. The morning was spent in securing a jury. The opening statements were made this afternoon and a number of witnesses heard.

The first witness was James P. Archey, the defendant in the action. Mr. Archey did not remember many of the conversations he is alleged to have made which the plaintiffs say were injurious to their business. Other witnesses were Samuel Kinnett, William Foster, James W. Anderson and W. G. Dustin, a stockbuyer of Cincinnati.

All the witnesses related conversations they had had with Mr. Archey. Mr. Anderson testified that Archey told him that the Milroy Stock company had been stealing over their scales for a number of years and that he understood that the grand jury was going to investigate. Mr. Dustin testified as to a conversation he had with the defendant in the depot at Milroy one day about a year ago. In this conversation Archey said, according to the witness, that he did not see how the Milroy Stock company could pay a quarter of a cent more on the pound than he could for stock and ventured the opinion that they stole 150 pounds every time they used the scales.

The jury hearing the case is composed of the following men: M. L. McBride, Center township; Albert Bowles, Center; John Stech, Rushville; Edgar Wilson, Union; J. B. Austin, Union; Conrad Kiser, Ripley; A. N. Williams, Posey; O. E. Rich, Center; C. W. Miles, Washington; Elmer Ellison, Walker; Henry Addison, Posey and Jacob Gross, Washington.

The defense in answer to the amended complaint admits that Archey made the remarks which the plaintiff says were made with malicious intent to injure the reputation and business of the Milroy Stock company. Taking the defense for what the answer says, it is evident that Archey will attempt to prove that his alleged slanderous remarks were true.

Mr. Archey is alleged to have said that "the Milroy Stock company has been stealing in weights for over two years," and in his answer he admits that he said this and cites several transactions in which the company was involved to prove that his assertion was true. Another of the remarks which he admits making is that "no wonder Matthews can pay a quarter of a cent more for hogs than I can, he has been stealing in weight for two years."

The defense does not deny that Mr. Archey said the things which the plaintiff says were injurious to the business and the fur is expected to fly when the defense starts its side of the case. Mr. Archey also admits that he said "it is awful how that Milroy stock company have been swindling the people off the scales at Milroy."

A great array of legal talent is displayed on both sides of the case. The plaintiffs are represented by

day, But is Caught Before he Has Chance to Get Away..

POLICE LOOKING FOR HIM

The police are looking for Glen Smith, age eighteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith, living at the corner of Julian and Second streets, who this morning passed a forged check for five dollars at the Weeks Fresh Meat & Provision company, but was later found by Ed Haywood, manager of the company, and forced to give the money back. The police found trace of young Smith, but this afternoon believed that he had left the city.

The check passed at the meat shop was made payable to Smith and bore the signature of William A. Jones. Mr. Haywood had no sooner cashed the check that he became suspicious because he knew that W. A. Jones generally wrote his checks with a lead pencil and this one was in ink. Mr. Haywood noticed that the handwriting was all alike.

He started out to hunt Smith and met Lewis Sexton, cashier of the Rush County National bank, at the door of the meat shop. Mr. Sexton confirmed his belief that it was not W. A. Jones' writing. Furthermore the check was on the People National bank, while Mr. Jones' deposits at the Rush county bank. Mr. Haywood found Smith as he was preparing to leave the city. He said he would not prosecute the boy. Smith has been in the navy.

Robert E. Mansfield, Who Will Arrive

of Swiss Thrift.

AND HOW IT IS REWARDED.

United States Consul is Promoted
From Zurich to Vancouver, B. C.

There is at least one country in Europe which has not suffered from the financial depression following the Balkan wars, according to Robert E. Mansfield, the late Consul General at Zurich, Switzerland, who will arrive here, together with his wife, in a few days for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Gowdy. They are now in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Mansfield has been transferred to Vancouver, B. C. Consul General Mansfield says that while other countries were suffering from the money stringency Switzerland became the stocking of Europe, and persons from all parts of the continent sent their money into that country. The New York Times reports the following interview with him:

"At first the talk of war in the Balkans, and then the war itself caused many persons to send their money to the country in order to put it in a safe place and get a good rate of interest. Consequently the banks of Switzerland have been well off for gold. So it was that the country could not easily be affected by the financial depression that prevailed elsewhere. The conservatism and carefulness that pervades the whole Swiss social and financial system make the Swiss prepared for any emergency."

"Switzerland has been very prosperous for several years, although trade with the United States is decreasing, for the reason that we our-

THE SIGN OF THE SQUARE DEAL

The first sign that a merchant means to give you a square deal is when he comes out in print and tells you exactly what he is willing to do.

He is putting a promise on paper in words he cannot recall. He is giving you a written contract—you have a right to hold him to it.

He deserves your confidence and your consideration if you need his wares.

All things being equal choose the man who advertises in your paper against the one who does not.

Perhaps the one who does not advertise is merely an old fogey or perhaps he is afraid of something.

Even if it is simply through old fogeyism that he invites the spider to spin webs over his door—shun him.

Who wants to trade with numbers and "never-wuzzers" in these days of live wires—you don't, do you?

AUDITOR TO BE FINAL JUDGE

Opinion of Attorney General Says

County Must Determine Number of Miles of Road.

FOR AUTO LICENSE MONEY

Question Arose as to What Constituted a Free Gravel and Macadam Highway Under Law.

What constitutes a "free gravel and macadam road" under the 1913 automobile licensing act of the Indiana general assembly, was outlined by Attorney-General Thos. M. Honan in an opinion to Lew G. Ellingham secretary of state. Mr. Ellingham had questioned the attorney-general so that he might protect his office in regard to the distribution of money from the sales of auto licenses.

The Indiana law provides for the division of the entire revenue from auto license sales into three parts, one to be distributed equally to all the counties, one to be distributed to the counties pro rata on the total auto licenses held in the county and the third to be distributed to the counties in proportion to the number of miles of "free gravel and macadam roads" that lie within the county borders. The county auditor is to be the final judge of the number of miles of such roads in each county, the opinion says.

The attorney-general interpreted the meaning of the words "free gravel and macadam roads" as follows:

"These words mean all free gravel and macadam roads in every county of the state under the jurisdiction of the board of commissioners of each county, while acting as turnpike directors. The law specifically vests in such turnpike directors authority over such roads, thus forming a free gravel road system throughout the counties of the state.

"These roads, after January 1, 1914, will be under the control of a county highway supervisor, who will take the place of the turnpike directors. Other roads than the free gravel and macadam roads in a county are usually designated as township roads, which various supervisors look after."

The state officials said the auditor of each county should certify to the secretary of state the proper number of miles of free gravel and macadam in each county, and on his figures the distribution of the auto funds was to be made.

Mr. Ellingham is preparing certification blanks for the auditors. The total income to the state from the license sales can not be estimated yet, but it is expected that this year's total, which will be only half a total because the law went into effect in July, will run above $100,000.

ONE IS MENACE TO THE OTHER

which was intelligent so far as America is concerned, to imagine the results if it were picked up in the night and set down in the heart of Germany.

"Who would know anything about the institutions?" he demanded. "Who would know the name of the king, the kind of government that prevailed or the customs or language of the people? This is the position of the immigrant when he arrives here.

"The menace to America is due in a measure to the carelessness of Americans in failing to teach the immigrant anything. We might pick up a little of the language in a foreign land, but when the immigrant comes here, before he will learn the English language, he will seek out the natives of his country and refuse to become a part of the American life. Their first environment is generally detrimental to their growth, because it never gives them a pleasing idea of our country. They are huddled into tenements like cattle and charged exorbitant rents. They are placed in a hopeless condition because of the ignorance of Americans."

The Rev. Mr. Meacham pointed out that race prejudice between those of us getting here first and those arriving later entered into the question. He said that 16,007 were rejected out of a total of over a million immigrants in 1912. He declared that not all of those which were passed were mentally and physically sound. He said many of them were debauched by unscrupulous politicians.

"Churches in big cities," continued the pastor, "make a big splutter over the immigrant. They build a little shack of a mission house with pennies taken in at the Sunday school and expect the foreigners to worship there, when they were accustomed in their country to massive and imposing houses of worship."

In closing, the Rev. Mr. Meacham said the immigrant does not always come because of dissatisfaction over religion, but because his religion is not giving him what he wants. He declared that if the Protestants were not aroused from their lethargy and the present system maintains, the Roman Catholics will gain control in the United States. He asserted that it would eventually be a rule of Catholicism or Protestantism in this country.

AND THEN THERE'RE SLANG PHRASES TOO

English Authorities Don't Overlook

Anything in Compiling New Modern Dictionary.

WHAT'S A "MUCKER" NOW?

Slang is the great feeder of languages," according to Dr. Harry Thurston Peck, formerly Professor of English at Columbia University and editor and author of many books on our languages, who has included slang in his latest work just published under the title of "New Modern English illustrated."

Dr. Peck believes, however, that a word shall have had the test of several years' usage before it is adopted as a permanent addition to the English vocabulary and in editing the most up-to-date work on English now obtainable he has added many new words not to be found in larger volumes.

The New Modern is the "last word" in dictionary compilation, being entirely new from cover to cover, illustrated with plates in color and monotone and containing departments prepared by experts on motoring the aviation.

Some of the slang found in its pages follows: "Mucker," "swell," "snob," "muckraker," "galoot," "gal," "mug," "swipe," "rickey," "bum," "boodle," "touch," "cracker-jack," "spizzerinktum," "booze." These are only a few of many, but do you know all their meaning? If you don't you need the New Modern.

cept the bill for the tree doctors. After this motion was carried Dr. Parsons then moved that the bill of the tree doctors for $400 be allowed. Once more Mayor Black took a stand against the matter and ruled him out of order. City Attorney Barrett has been opposed to the allowing of the bill from the very start and stopped the proceedings long enough to want to read the law on the question, but Dr. Parsons told him they didn't need it as the council had heard it numerous times already. Once again an appeal was taken from the chair and eventually the motion to allow the bill was carried.

Mayor Black has fought the bill from the start and the ordinance was passed over his veto. Today's fight seemed to be a final effort to keep from paying the bill and even with the mayor ordered to pay the bill it is intimated that he will refuse to sign the voucher.

SUIT IS BROUGHT AGAINST WAGNER

Knightstown Marshall is Asked to Pay Judgment Because he Allowed Prisoner to Escape.

BONDSMAN ALSO DEFENDANT

Pete Wagner, town marshall at Knightstown, was made the defendant in a suit filed yesterday in the Henry county circuit court for $300 alleging that he "negligently and wrongfully suffered and permitted Earl Reiser to escape." His bondsman, the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland is also named a party to the suit.

Last May Wagner arrested "Cooney," as Reiser is familiarly known, on a paternity charge filed by Mary C. Shaffer. "Cooney" desired to give bond and the town marshall to accommodate him accompanied Reiser to a pool room in Knightsbridge to look for a "friend." The "friend" was in the rear room and Reiser went there to look for him and has not been seen since. The suit against Reiser was called last week in the circuit court and Miss Shaffer was awarded judgment for $250. As Reiser was not there to pay, it looks as though the town marshall would have to come through with the money.

Speedily discovering his mistake, however, he stepped softly down the aisle and requested the collector to give him back the coin, which request was politely but firmly refused. It might have got me into trouble any where else." —Pall Mall Gazette.

Thanksgiving Day Reunions

To save the finer spirit of the old Thanksgiving day, something more than a plump turkey and accompanying dainties is required. The real charm lies in family reunions. This is difficult where one brother is in California, a sister in Florida, an uncle in Vermont and the cousins scattered all over.

In the old days when all the folks used to settle down within a carriage drive of the old fireside home, there were youngsters enough to fill the house with roaring merriment. A clan spirit of family loyalty united all hearts.

Modern life has scattered the old families to the winds of heaven. The Thanksgiving feast can rarely be a general assembly of all branches of the family tree. But it still serves to bring together friends from a distance.

The modern Thanksgiving is less uproarious. But the meeting of long separated kindred may give the day a deeper sentiment than in the old times when reunions were easy and frequent.

Special Demonstration and Sale

One Week Only

Great MAJESTIC Ranges

November 24 to November 29

SAVE $8.00

As a special inducement during our demonstration week only, with every MAJESTIC RANGE sold (prices always the same) we will give free one handsome set of ware as illustrated here. Every piece of this ware is the best of its kind. Not a piece that is not needed in every kitchen. It cannot possibly be bought for less than $8.00. This ware is on exhibition at our store. DON'T FAIL TO SEE IT.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

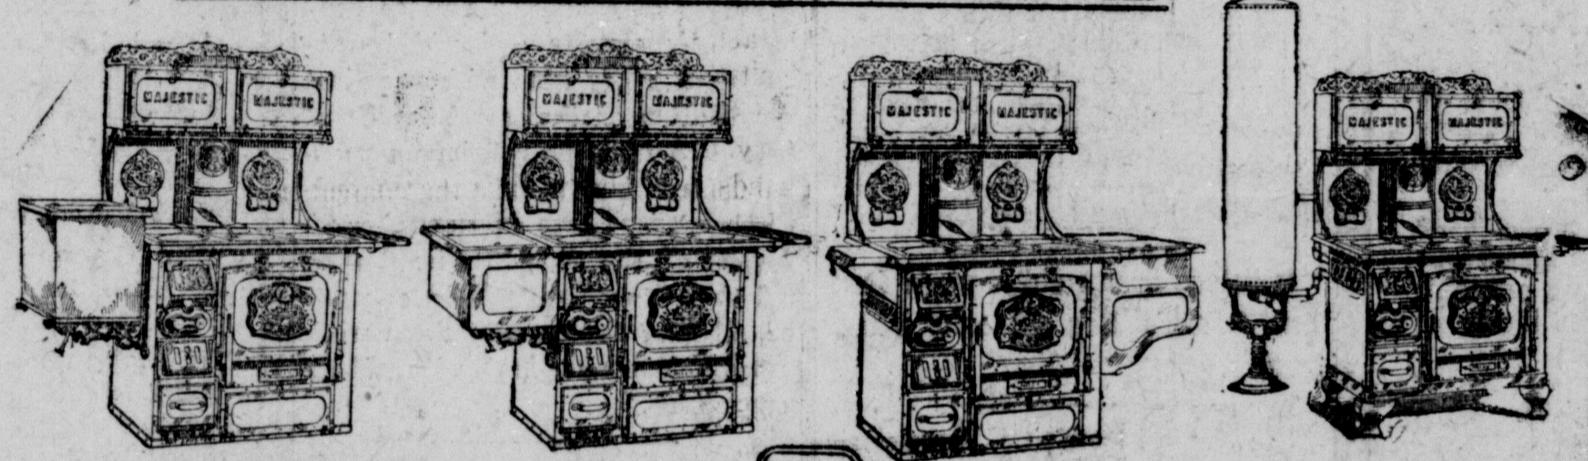

Do you intend to continue laboring, burning valuable fuel and destroying high-priced food with that old worn-out cook stove? You KNOW that old stove eats up a lot of fuel each year.

You KNOW you have trouble in getting it to bake just right, in fact, spoil a batch of bread—you know it costs considerable for yearly repairs—siderable for yearly repairs. Stop and think and figure. Wouldn't it pay you to buy a good range—a range with a reputation—

The Great Majestic Malleable and Charcoal Iron Range

You make no mistake in buying the GREAT MAJESTIC—it's the range with THE REPUTATION—ask your neighbors. Then, too, it's made just right and of the right kind of material—MALEABLE AND CHARCOAL IRON—riveted together practically air tight—lined with pure asbestos board—parts being malleable can't break—has a movable reservoir and an oven that don't warp—that's why the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel, bakes just right every day in the year (browns bread just right all over without turning) heats 15 gallons of water while breakfast is cooking—properly handled lasts a lifetime, and costs practically nothing for repairs.

Don't buy the range you expect to last a lifetime "unsight unseen;" you'll be sure to be disappointed. Come to our store during demonstration week, see the GREAT MAJESTIC—have its many exclusive features explained—find out why the MAJESTIC is 300% stronger than any other ranges where most ranges are weakest.

SPECIAL

All during this week a special demonstrator direct from the MAJESTIC FACTORY will be glad to show you "ALL ABOUT RANGES"—show you why the MAJESTIC is the best range on earth at any price.

Come, If You Intend to Buy or Not

EDUCATION lies in KNOWING THINGS—KNOW why the oven of a range is heated—Know how the water is heated—HOW the top is heated—WHY the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel—KNOW how a range is made inside and outside. This education may serve you in the future. DON'T OVERLOOK a chance to KNOW THINGS shown by one who knows. Come.

EXAMINATIONS TO BE HELD NEXT MAY

Seven Fourth Class Postoffices in Rush County Will be Thrown Open to Competition.

ONLY ONE IS NOT INCLUDED

Dispatches from Washington announce that the fourth class postmasterships will be thrown open to competitive examination next May. Seven of the eight fourth class postoffices in Rush county will be included: Milroy, New Salem, Mays, Falmouth, Manilla, Arlington and Glenwood. The other postoffice in this class is located at Homer. No examination for that office will be held because the act providing for the examinations says that only postoffices paying above a given renumeration shall be included, which excludes Homer.

None of the postoffices of this class make the postmaster rich because if they paid a salary of more than a thousand dollars a year, they would become third class offices. The Milroy office is the best fourth class office in the county. It is just barely outside the third class. Carthage, the only other office in the county besides Rushville, is a presidential office like Rushville. The congressman from the district, if he is of the same party as the president, names the candidate, he is appointed by the president and the Senate confirms the appointment.

USED BROOM AND PIECE OF WIRE

Escaped From Litchfield Jail Was Like Child's Play to Cordia
Martin and Pals.

SECURED DRAWER WITH KEYS

Pulled it From Desk in Corridor and Rest Was Easy—Then Robbed
Store at Hillsboro.

That Cordia Martin of Greenfield has lost none of his cleverness and must be given credit for being a smooth crook is shown in the manner in which he and his pals escaped from the Litchfield, Ill., jail. Martin twice escaped jail at Greenfield and on one of these occasions was captured at Milroy by Sheriff Beabout. The second time he left the Greenfield jail he was under indictment for robbing the New Palestine bank.

The manner in which Martin and his pals broke jail at Litchfield was very simple and is described at length in a letter to the mayor of Greenfield by the mayor of Litchfield. In his latest escape Martin furnished the brains and his fellow prisoner St. Cyr did the work. A roll-top desk stood in the corridor of the jail opposite one of the cells. The desk was never closed and for ten years past the keys to the cell doors have been kept in the drawers of this desk.

Using a broom for a staff and attaching to its end a stranded cable made of small wire from the broom, the prisoners were able to attach a loop to the end of a cord made of twisted thread and having the loop attached drew the drawer and its contents from the desk and across the floor to the cell. The rest was easy. One of the men having small hands, was able to take the contents of the drawer into the cell and obtain the keys to the various cells.

The delivery occurred some time after one o'clock Sunday morning. Following the delivery a robbery took place Sunday night at Hillsboro, Ill., which is believed to have been the work of Martin and his gang.

In his letter the Mayor of Litchfield says in part: "Our chief feels much embarrassed over their escape. In his letter the Mayor of Litchfield says in part: "Our chief feels much embarrassed over their escape, and while he and the officers have only followed the established practice of ten years in allowing the keys mentioned to remain in the drawer of this desk, the job was so easy and so simple that it seems child's play. Permitting the prisoners to come in possession of a broom and other material which furnished the instrument of escape, was a piece of carelessness, and as prisoners here have always been required to sweep their own cells, and the brooms have been furnished for that purpose, I can readily see that it would be possible for three prisoners to retain a broom in one of the cells and keep secreted under a mattress whenever the police were in the jail.

Rheumatism and its Cause

Uric acid in the blood is the cause of this disease.

These small crystals deposit in the blood vessels and retard the circulation and cause irritation and acute pain.

The only sane remedy for this trouble is a uric acid solvent. Liniments and counter irritants are but temporary, if any, relief. This trouble can only be reached successfully by internal remedies.

An old English physician, Dr. John Hyde, discovered a remedy while in general practice of medicine that he used with phenomenal success for many years for Rheumatism and Kidney trouble.

He gave the prescription to F. E. Wolcott, the druggist, and he has sold hundreds of bottles of it, always on a guarantee, and but a very few ever were returned.

In the past 6 years he has cured a number of cases who were on crutches and had Lumbago until confined to the house.

It sells on a positive guarantee and pint bottles are only 75c.

VERN WINK COMES ACROSS WITH CASH

Sends Wife Check When Contempt of Court Proceedings Are Brought Against Him.

ALIMONY FOR ONE MONTH

Newspaper advertising has again proven its worth. A few days ago an article in The Courier told of Vern Wink, the former Knightstown druggist, being cited to appear before Judge Jackson for contempt of court for not paying his wife alimony, which was granted her at her divorce trial several weeks ago, says the Newcastle Courier.

This morning a letter was received from Wink in which was enclosed $24 to pay for one-month's alimony. He was in Anderson when the letter was mailed and is out of the jurisdiction of the local court, but if he continues to pay the alimony it is understood his wife will drop the proceedings.

RAISE QUESTION AS TO SOME FEES

Shelby County Commissioners Ask For Court Ruling, But Law Seems to be Very Plain.

LOCAL OFFICIALS PUZZLED

Commissioners Here Pay Themselves For Services as Turnpike Directors—Not Illegal.

The Shelby county commissioners have raised the question whether they are entitled to three dollars a day each for meeting a free turnpike directors in asking Judge Blair of the Shelby circuit court for an opinion on the question. Investigation here divulges the fact that the Rush county commissioners have been allowing themselves this sum for such services, because the law admits such a practice.

Section 7759 of Indiana revised statutes says: "Compensation of such gravel road directors for services as such shall be three dollars per day for time actually served, which shall be in addition to ten cents per mile hereinbefore provided for." Section 7757 of the same law says they shall be allowed for annual services ten cents per mile of gravel and turnpike roads in the county.

For the first half of this year the commissioners received in extra fees the following sums: Ed. Harrison, $44.25; Edson Aiken, $74.00; T. J. Humes, $72.50. They allowed themselves eleven dollars each for annual services, which, at the rate of ten cents a mile, means they estimate the free gravel and turnpike road mileage in the county at two hundred and twenty miles. Charles Bales, deputy county auditor, says that there are more miles of these two classes of roads. The mileage fee is allowed because each commissioner has to oversee the repair of these two kinds of roads in his district.

Rush county officials can not account for the action of the Shelby county commissioners in raising this point of law unless they base it on an old statute passed in 1899, which says that the commissioners shall have no extra pay for their services. It might be viewed that the commissioners are not acting as such when they meet as free turnpike and gravel road directors.

It is stated that the Shelby county board has many strange practices. At a joint meeting of the Rush and Shelby county boards last week the local commissioners refused to go into session until they were convened by the county sheriff. An act of an Indiana legislature provides that the sheriff shall convene every meeting of the commissioners, but it has never been observed by the Shelby county board.

It is felt by county officials that if the allowance of these two fees were not legal in every respect, examiners from the state board of accounts would not check them as they have done since the accounting board law has been in effect.

Milroy Drain Tile Company Files Account Suit.

The Milroy Drain Tile Company, through its attorneys, Will M. Sparks, of Rushville, and Elmer Bassett, of this city has filed suit in the Shelby Circuit court against George W. Ogden and William H. Ogden, says the Shelbyville Republican. The suit is one on account and on a bond. The demand is for $225. The plaintiff company charges that William H. Ogden is indebted to them in the sum of $164.87 and interest, for tile used in the building of a public drain in Moral township, the drain being known as the Rubush drain. The tile, it is alleged, were never paid for and George Ogden who was on the bond of W. H. Ogden failed to pay the company for them.

Experts, Would Be
$1,000,000 a Day.

WHILE it is now almost universally realized, in Washington official circles as well as elsewhere, that it is the unalterable purpose of the administration to force General Victoriano Huerta to relinquish his grasp on the reins of the Mexican government, just how this dangerous and most difficult task is to be accomplished is a matter yet to be worked out. Most people in Washington, as elsewhere in the country, with the notable exception of President Wilson himself, have now accepted the idea that the United States must use force in Mexico in the not distant future, but few realize the exact nature of the task which it is feared the government will have to take upon itself.

It is popularly believed that army officers are eager for intervention on the general principle that the army as a whole wants to justify its existence and exhibit its prowess. This is not true. Army officers, better than any one else, realize fully what intervention means, and as a result they are more against intervention than in favor of it. They know that intervention of a military character in Mexico is just about the biggest job which this country could find for itself were it to go out looking for trouble.

500,000 Men Necessary.

A year ago a leading military authority, at the request of President Taft, made a careful estimate of what it would cost to make military intervention in Mexico an effective reality. This authority declared that it would require 500,000 men at a cost of a million dollars a day for two years to do it successfully, and since that time the figures have not been altered.

There is scant doubt that the beginnings of intervention in Mexico could be accomplished in a very short time

GENERAL VICTORIANO HUERTA.
With the present forces of the regular army and the militia. An expeditionary force is already waiting the word at Texas City. The border cities could be seized literally in a day without serious consequences or any great effort. The ports of Mexico on both the Atlantic and the Pacific coast could be put under blockade within 100 hours after the first order was issued. A force could be landed at Vera Cruz within a few days, the time between its embarkation and debarkation being occupied by the navy in reducing the fortifications of the city on the ocean side and occupying vital points.

Neither is there much doubt about the ability of a comparatively small force, say 15,000 or 20,000 men, to make its way from Vera Cruz to Mexico City in a brief period and follow its march with an effective assault upon the Mexican capital. Even these few operations would give to the United States the control of all means of ingress and egress on three sides of Mexico, thus depriving her of imports of arms, ammunition and other necessities of war and in addition control of the capital of the country and the national seat of government.

Real Task's Beginning.

And there, in the opinion of military experts, just when that much had been accomplished would the real task of intervening in Mexico begin.

The only kind of intervention which the United States could undertake would necessarily mean the protection of the lives and property of all foreign citizens as well as its own, and this would involve the occupation of the entire country of Mexico by the forces of the United States. Its policing by American soldiers as thoroughly as a great city is guarded by day and by night, the elimination of the bandits, pillaging and barbarity which now rule two-thirds of the country and the substitution of law, order and real government. And that, as the army experts see it, is a task even greater than the work General Porfirio Diaz was twenty years in doing—that is, stamping out lawlessness and making Mexico a fit place for the investment of capital, the pursuit of agricultural and other industries and the transaction of commerce.

Intervention in Mexico will be for the purpose of accomplishing three things—first, to afford protection to American and other foreign interests in Mexico; second, the restoration of law and order in that country, and third—an objective added to the situation since President Wilson has grappled with the problem—the establishment of a "constitutionalist government" resting solely on the consent of the governed and unsustained by blood or violence.

On the border Matamoras, Nuevo Laredo, Piedras Negras, Juarez and Nogales will be occupied, together with their railroad and telegraph communications. Forces will be advanced southward from the border and westward from Vera Cruz toward Mexico City and other centers of communication. State capitals will be seized as rapidly as the advancing forces can make their way.

This advance will be governed more by the state of railroad communications than by the opposition of Mexicans, as communications to the several bases in the rear must be kept open, no matter how slow this makes the forward movement. In the guerrilla warfare that is expected in the northern states more is feared from destruction of railroad communications in the rear than from any opposition in front.

Guarding the Railroads.

For this reason along all lines of entry into Mexico, especially from Vera Cruz, thousands of men will be required for the task of guarding the railways from destruction. Today less than 50 per cent of the mileage of Mexican railroads is under operation, though parts of them have been practically reconstructed throughout three or four times because of the havoc played by the rebels in harassing the government forces.

Once the principal lines of railway communication as well as the ports and the capital have been seized the American forces will begin the work of distributing themselves to the more remote localities for the double purpose of stamping out the raiding bands and affording protection to foreigners and their properties.

Huerta claims now to have an army of 80,000 men. It is believed by the Capturing Capital Easy.

The overthrow of the Mexico City government can be easily accomplished or, at least, without fear of any very great obstacles, but it will not in the least remedy the situation in the states, where hundreds and even thousands of noncombatants, including many foreigners, have been despoiled of their property and killed. It is more likely, rather, that the subjugation of the central government by American forces would for the moment serve to increase the lawlessness outside of Mexico City and the subsequent danger to the life and property of foreigners.

Again, if the American forces went over the border and took Hermosillo, in Sonora, the present capital of the Carranzistas, such action would not in the least better the situation in the score of other states where innumerable robber bands are making industry, business and even residence impossible for foreigners.

So widely scattered are the great properties, industrial and agricultural and commercial, which go to make up the greater part of the material interests of the United States and other nations in Mexico that there is no part of the country where it would not be necessary to have detachments of American troops for police purposes.

Navy Program Simple.

With seven battleships and two cruisers on the east coast of Mexico and others on the way thither and three cruisers and auxiliaries on the west coast or en route and more in reserve, it will be simple for the navy to fulfill its part of the program. Tampico, Vera Cruz, Campeche, Progreso, Puerto Mexico and perhaps one or two other ports will be seized and blockaded without difficulty on the Atlantic side. Guaymas, Mazatlan and Salina Cruz will be the principal ports to be held and guarded on the west coast.

Washington authorities that he actually has not more than two-thirds of that number of soldiers and that not more than a quarter of these could easily be assembled into an army at any one place.

Rebel Numbers Exaggerated.

Carranza claims for the Constitutionalists 80,000 men under arms. When all Mexico has been under arms for nearly three years army experts, with definite reports to guide them, do not credit these revolutionists with more than half that number of soldiers. Their forces are even more widely scattered than those of the federales and are not organized.

Instead, the demoralization and surrender of the federales and the breaking up of the present revolutionists into small bands are the expected outcome of the first few engagements. After that the work of the army will partake solely of the nature of police duty.

The talk of Mexicans to the effect that internal troubles will be forgotten if the United States invades their territory and every Mexican will take a rifle and rush to the defense of his country is not taken very seriously in Washington. It is rather believed that people which has not sufficient patriotism to suppress lawlessness, pillaging, burning and even the carrying off of all the women of whole villages will not be found electing to die in such a hopeless cause as that of opposing the United States.

A Mexican Constabulary.

That Mexicans will be employed eventually in running to earth the innumerable bands who for three years have lived on loot is considered as more than probable. In other words, it is the plan to make the Mexicans help to clean their own house.

Under efficient leadership, good pay, good food and decent treatment American officers have found in the Latin Americans in Cuba and in Porto Rico the makings of excellent constabulary. The success of this plan would relieve the United States force of a goodly part of the burden and just so rapidly diminish the period through which it would be necessary to keep a very large force in Mexico.

Taking all these facts into consideration, army officers today are not at all afraid that the army will not prove equal to the task which seems likely to be thrust upon it.

BIBLE STUDY IN STATE SCHOOLS

Board of Education Adopts the Dakota Plan.

LITERARY AND HISTORICAL

These Phases of the Book Alone Will Be Considered in Grading the Pupils on Their Study of the Bible, the Theological Points Being Disregarded in Considering the Excellence of the New Text Book.

Indianapolis, Nov. 19.—The rich literature and history of the Bible is to become a source of knowledge for school children of Indiana, under an order that the state board of education will pass at its next meeting here. The North Dakota plan of Bible study in the schools is to be adopted in Indiana, according to a statement from Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction. The innovation in the Hoosier schools, however, is to be safeguarded so that it is believed no sect, creed or church can take offense at the methods used. The literary and historical phases of Bible study are to form the basis of the courses and the theological side of the book is to be disregarded.

A committee from the state board of education, recently appointed to investigate the possibilities of introducing Bible study into Indiana schools, has reported favorably on the project and the board now awaits only a formal vote to adopt the plan. The report of the committee shows that the similar far-reaching work attempted in North Dakota has proved "eminently satisfactory." Mr. Greathouse said that investigation had shown that practically everyone interested in school life, in Indiana, had approved the board's plan. Because the children of today are so meagerly informed about the contents of the Bible, the action of the board, which has been under contemplation for more than four months, now will become the official program of the board, Mr. Greathouse said.

HIS REVENGE WAS SWIFT

Miner Kills Woman Who Had Divorced Him, and Her New Husband.

Linton, Ind., Nov. 19.—Edward Duncan, aged forty-two, a miner at Daytonville, came here and, going to the home of his former wife, Mrs. Lula Taylor, who was divorced last week from him, and married to Tillman Taylor the next day, murdered both of them.

Duncan stepped into the Taylor home while the family was at dinner, and shot Taylor three times, killing him instantly. Mrs. Taylor then ran from the table into the yard, screaming. She was followed by her former husband, who shot her to death. Mrs. Taylor was thirty-six years old and her husband forty-two.

Thomas Shouse, a policeman, living across the street from the Taylors, immediately arrested Duncan as he was making his escape, and he was taken to the jail. Duncan said he came to Linton expressly to kill the man and woman, and said that he was now ready to die. He gave no reason other than that he did not propose to permit his former wife to live with another man. The shooting of both was his revenge.

The life of the slayer was in jeopardy for several hours after the shooting, as a mob of hundreds of miners surrounded the Linton jail and threatened to lynch him. He was taken secretly from the lockup and spirited to the Bloomfield jail.

Cost of Recent Strike Service.
Indianapolis, Nov. 19.—The assembling of the Indiana national guard in Indianapolis at the time of the recent streetcar strike cost the state about $36,000, according to an estimate that has been made at the statehouse. The money to be distributed among the soldiers will amount to approximately $21,000 and additional expenses are expected to reach $15,000.

Killed When Cars Ran Wild.
Cambridge City, Ind., Nov. 19.—J. G. Bracken of Indianapolis, fireman on a construction train which was standing on the track here, was killed when two cars became detached from a freight train west of town, and running wild down grade, crashed into the tender of the construction train on which Bracken was standing.

His Way of Going Hunting.
Oakland City, Ind., Nov. 19.—J. Cameron Martin, a farmer near Somerville, was shot and painfully wounded by a hunter whom he ordered from his farm. The act was deliberate on the part of the hunter, who escaped.

Shot Toes On First Hunt.
Hazleton, Ind., Nov. 19.—Orris Thompson, aged twenty-two, a farmer living near Hazleton, shot off several toes with a shotgun. Thompson was enjoying his first hunt.

A Boy and a Gun.
Huntington, Ind., Nov. 19.—While playing with a revolver Leo Bell, ten years old, accidentally discharged the weapon and shot off one of his fingers.

IDA VON CLAUSSEN

Arrested For Threat to Kill Lawyer, Is Declared Insane.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

MORE NOTORIETY FOR MRS. VON CLAUSSEN

This Time a Commission Declares Her Insane.

New York, Nov. 19.—In the report of a commission of alienists submitted to Judge Malone in general sessions court, Mrs. Ida Von Clausen, who gained notoriety several years ago by threatening suit against President Roosevelt for $1,000,000 damages for not having introduced at the court of the king of Sweden, has been declared to be insane. Upon rescinding his order allowing Mrs. Von Clausen's release on bail of $5,000 in a case pending against her.

In pursuance of Judge Malone's order, Justice Seabury in the supreme court refused to grant Mrs. Von Clausen's application for a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. Von Clausen's arrest came as the result of letters which it is alleged she wrote to Charles Strauss, an attorney, in which she threatened to kill him if he did not obtain for her what she considered a valid decree of divorce. She will have opportunity later to contest the insanity findings of the alienists.

SHE DEMANDS $200,000

Former Ambassador Sued by Wife of His Son.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—Two hundred thousand dollars is the amount of damages claimed by Mrs. Georgenna Burdick Tower, who declares she is the wife of Charlemagne Tower, Jr., and who has sued Charlemagne Tower, Sr., for alleged alienation of the affections of his son. The complainant began her suit against Mr. Tower, Sr., who was former American ambassador to Germany, on Oct. 9, but has just filed a statement of damages. She declares in her suit that she was married to young Tower in New Haven, Conn., in June, 1911, while he was a student in a New England university, and she alleges that since then Mr. Tower, Sr., has induced young Tower to leave her and has alienated the son's affections from her.

Wiped Out the Garrison.

Matamoras, Nov. 19.—Every member of the defending federal garrison was killed before Constitutionalists finally captured Victoria, capital of the Mexican state of Tamaulipas. This report was made to Constitutionalist headquarters here by General Gonzales, who commanded the attacking forces. General Gonzales described the battle as one of the bloodiest of the present revolution.

Victim of Corn Shredder.

Zionsville, Ind., Nov. 19.—Jesse Walder lost his left arm in a corn shredder.

Eggs at San Francisco are retailing at 70 cents, the highest they have been quoted since mining camp days.

HINDUS DESCEND UPON LADYSMITH

Frenzied Asiatics Demand Release of Prisoners.

THEY SECURED THEIR DEMAND

Then While the Released Prisoners Were Being Conducted by the Police to the Railroad Station, the Mob Turned and There Was a Merry Fight—Strike Situation Throughout Natal Becoming Alarming.

Durban, South Africa, Nov. 19.—At Ladysmith there was a serious riot when a mob of 1,000 Hindus, incensed at the restrictions on the immigration of Asiatics, invaded the town and demanded the release of several of their fellow countrymen, who have been in prison for causing disturbances since the beginning of the race war in South Africa.

The demand was granted on the promise of the Hindus to return to work. While the released prisoners were being conducted by the police to the railroad station the mob turned on the police and attacked them with sticks and stones. Many were injured in the fight that followed, and it lasted an hour, as the policemen were unarmed and unable to control the Hindus. The rioters refused to leave the town.

Revolvers were then handed out to the police and a force of armed townsmen was enrolled. In this way the Hindus were finally induced to submit and return to Blandengate. It is said that the leaders of the Hindus are not responsible for the outbreak, as they do not counsel violence.

Forces of police are hurrying to the town from all parts of the union of South Africa, as it is feared that the strike will become general throughout Natal, where there are about 150,000 Asiatics who have been roused to frenzy by stories of alleged inhuman treatment meted out to the Hindu workers in the mines of Dundee, north of Ladysmith.

SAY RECOUNT WAS UNFAIR

Defeated Candidates at Lafayette Will Carry Case to Court.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 19.—The commissioners appointed by the court to recount the votes cast for mayor and city clerk in the recent city election has completed its work and the recount gives Thomas Bauer, the Citizens' candidate for mayor, a majority of seventy-three, instead of sixteen, as indicated in the returns on election night. They also show the election of Edward Vaughan, the Citizens' candidate for city clerk, by a majority of thirty-six votes, whereas the election returns showed the vote for Vaughan and his Democratic opponent to be a tie. Attorneys for Mayor George R. Durgan, Democratic candidate, say that the rulings of the board were unfair in many respects, and that when the case comes up in court as a contest in January, that many of the ballots which the commissioners threw out will be declared valid, and they still have hopes that the ultimate result will be the election of the Democratic candidates for mayor and clerk.

THE FARMER DOESN'T GET IT

Advance in Price of Eggs Puzzles Agricultural Department.

Washington, Nov. 19.—In view of the high price of eggs, farmers will be interested in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture pointing out that the average price received by farmers is 16 cents a dozen. The exorbitant price for eggs is difficult to understand in view of the statement that the production of eggs in the United States is increasing steadily each year.

The increase in the annual production of eggs in the United States from 1899 to 1909 was 23 per cent, while the increase in the population of this country for the same decade was 21 per cent; in other words the increase in the production of eggs for ten years was greater than the increase in population.

Federals Then Fleed.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 19.—Thirty-five federal volunteers and five rebel cavalrymen were killed in a two-hour battle at Laguna, on the Mexican Central railway, seventy miles north of Chihuahua City. When the engagement ended the federal volunteers were in flight toward Sauz, a short distance north of the capital.

Will Goethals Accept?

Dayton, O., Nov. 19.—A telegram was sent to Colonel George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, offering him the city management of Dayton under the new commission form of government. There is no assurance that Colonel Goethals will consider the offer.

Shot Himself Through Head.

Washington, Ind., Nov. 19.—Sam Rogers, thirty-five years old, shot himself through the head and died instantly. He leaves four children and a widow.

ANTY DRUDGE
Mrs. Manager—“Come in, Anty Drudge, and don't look so shocked. I'm not using this boiler for my washing, but after I got done today I had plenty of time, so I thought I'd dye this dress of Mary's that got so faded before I started to use Fels-Naptha Soap. So I just mixed the dye in the boiler.”

Anty Drudge—“I certainly was surprised. I thought you'd gone back to the old way, and I couldn't understand it. But I guess it's Fels-Naptha Soap for you always, isn't it? I buy mine by the box.”

Every woman who once uses Fels-Naptha Soap in cool or lukewarm water uses it always for all kinds of work. It is the easy-way, cool-water, no-hard-rubbing soap which cuts woman's work in two and gives her time for rest and pleasure.

Clothes washed with Fels-Naptha do not have to be hard-rubbed or boiled.

Better buy it by the box or carton. Easy directions are on the Red and Green Wrapper.

THIS MAY BE HIS LAST DAY

Hint That Huerta May Resign Tomorrow.

CONGRESS TO CONVENE THEN

Failure to Give Up Provisional Presidency Before This Due to Fact That There Has Been Nobody to Whom Dictator Could Properly Tender His Resignation, but Tomorrow, When Credentials Committee Reports, Will Be His Chance

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—Further dissensions in President Huerta's cabinet are persistently reported. It is asserted that Foreign Minister Moheno and Minister of Communications Lozane will quit this week.

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—While President Huerta has given no sign of change in his determination not to yield to the United States, it is believed in government circles that when congress meets tomorrow and the report of the committee on credentials is read the provisional president's resignation will be offered. There is nobody to whom General Huerta could resign at present.

The action of the German minister in telling his countrymen here that the blockade of the ports of Mexico is to be expected in a day or two is taken to indicate that the European powers cannot understand how the United States can delay action after going so far.

Communication between Tampico, an important gulf port, and San Luis Potosi, has been cut by the rebels, as has also communication between Monterey and Saltillo and Victoria.

Pedro Gonzales, commanding the Carranzista force in Tamaulipas, is reported, according to a message brought here by courier, to have captured Victoria, the capital of the state, after fierce fighting. The federales made their last stand in the church and their losses are said to be heavy, including one colonel and four captains killed. It is added that Gonzales sent a large rebel force to head off the federal reinforcements from Monterey, and defeated them.

The German cruiser Nuremburg has been ordered to proceed from Mazatlan to San Blas, Lower California, to take off German colonists in danger there.

President Huerta has sent telegrams to the governors of all the states held by the federales asking how many troops they can place in the field tomorrow. A shipment of 1,000,000 pesos was made yesterday to Torreon by the government to pay the soldiers there.

HAS NO OFFICIAL STATUS

Dr. Hale Placed in Embarrassing Position by Carranza.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Evidence of the growing independence of the Mexican Constitutionalists is found in news which has reached Washington through unoffical channels. It was said that Carranza had demanded of William Bayard Hale the production of credentials from the Wilson administration before he would undertake further negotiations with him. No confirmation could be obtained here in regard to this report, but if it is true it leaves Dr. Hale in practically the same predicament that confronted John Lind when he went to Mexico City as President Wilson's confidential agent, but without any official character.

The conviction is beginning to settle down on Washington that Carranza never will accept the aid of the United States with any string tied to it, and it is well understood that the suggestion of Hale did have a number of conditions attached to them. Much of the Carranza support would turn against him were he to enter into a bargain with the United States by which the Washington government is given any means of controlling or supervising his actions.

Officially Secretary Bryan never has admitted that Dr. Hale is representing the administration, and if Carranza has made a demand for credentials it is likely to prove embarrassing to the president unless the negotiations are to be terminated.

The administration had hoped by means of some arrangement with Carranza to evade the necessity of taking drastic action to get Huerta out of the government. This plan having failed, there is left only the alternatives of actually pushing Huerta out of the presidency by force or of abandoning the plan of forcing him out and relying on the course of events finally to bring about the same results.

The feeling that the country is not yet prepared to support an energetic and vigorous program for enforcing the president's dictum that Huerta must go, has been a very large factor in the administration's decision to leave the situation to itself for the present. It is recognized at Washington that there is no desire among the people of the United States generally for a war with Mexico, and the president is convinced that he will have to furnish very excellent reasons if in his handling of the situation he should determine upon armed intervention.

There are two advantages to be gained by buying vehicles from builders of vehicles for the jobbing trade only. One of them is that you can buy them at a price that means a saving to your customer of at least 10 to 15 Dollars on a job, and another thing is you can get buggies built like you want them and like your customers want. The small dealer has to take what the small manufacturer builds for him. We have them built to suit public demand and get what the public wants. Many of the Christmas trees which will make Chicago children happy this year will be brought from the woods of northern Michigan through the efforts of a widow and her twin daughters. The husband and father of the family lost his life last winter when the Christmas tree ship Rouse Slimmons, of which he had been captain for twenty years, went to the bottom of Lake Michigan during a storm.

Mrs. Herman Schuenemann of Chicago, the widow, is now in the Michigan woods directing a force of men in the work of cutting the trees. Her twin daughters, Elsie and May, are looking over the Chicago shipping lists for a vessel in which to bring the trees to market.

"Since father went down with the ship Rouse Slimmons," said Elsie to an interviewer, "mother has felt she had a work to carry on as a memorial and is determined that one Christmas ship shall bear his name."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Trap That Failed.

As the scornful maiden went out of the door under the escort of Cassidy, Burke bowed gallantly to her lithe back and blew a kiss from his thick finger tips in mocking reverence for her as an artist in her way. Then when he learned that Edward Gilder had arrived he ordered that the magnate and the district attorney be admitted and that the son also be sent up from his cell.

"It's a bad business, sir," Burke said with hearty sympathy to the shaken father after the formal greetings that followed the entrance of the two men. "It's a very bad business."

"What does he say?" Gilder questioned.

"Nothing!" Burke answered. "That is why I sent for you. I suppose Mr. Demarest has made the situation plain to you."

"Yes, he has explained it to me. It's a terrible position for my boy. But you'll release him at once, won't you?" "I can't," Burke replied reluctantly, but bluntly. "You ought not to expect it, Mr. Gilder."

"Inspector," the magnate cried brokenly, "you—don't mean!"

"I mean, Mr. Gilder, that you've got to make him talk. That's what I want you to do for all our sakes. Will you?" "I'll do my best," the unhappy man replied.

A minute later Dick, in charge of an officer, was brought into the room. He was pale, a little disheveled from his hours in a cell.

The father went forward quickly and caught Dick's hands in a mighty grip.

"My boy!" he murmured huskily. Then he made a great effort and controlled his emotion to some extent. "The inspector tells me," he went on, "that you've refused to talk—to answer his questions."

"That wasn't wise under the circumstances," the father remonstrated hurriedly. "However, now, Demarest and I are here to protect your interests, so that you can talk freely. Now, Dick, tell us! Who killed that man? We must know. Tell me."

Demarest went a step toward the young man. "Dick, I don't want to frighten you, but your position is really dangerous. Your only chance is to speak with perfect frankness. I pledge you my word I'm telling the truth. Dick, my boy, I want you to forget that I'm the district attorney and remember only that I'm an old friend of yours and of your father's who is trying very hard to help you. Surely you can trust me. Now, Dick, tell me: Who shot Griggs?"

"I shot Griggs," said the young man. Demarest realized that his plea had failed, but he made an effort to take the admission at its face value.

"Why?" he demanded.

"Because I thought he was a burglar."

"Oh, I see!" he said, in a tone of conviction. "Now, let's go back a little. Burke says you told him last night that you had persuaded your wife to come over to the house and join you there. Is that right?"

"Yes."

"Now, tell me, Dick, just what did happen, won't you?"

There was no reply, and, after a little interval, the lawyer resumed his questioning.

"Did this burglar come into the room?"

Dick nodded an assent.

"And he attacked you?"

There came another nod of affirmation.

"And there was a struggle?"

"Yes."

"And you shot him?"

"Yes."

"Then, where did you get the revolver?"

Dick started to answer without thought:

"Why, I grabbed it!"— Then, the significance of this crashed on his consciousness, and he checked the words trembling on his lips. "So," he said with swift hostility in his voice, "so, you're trying to trap me, too! You! And you talk of friendship. I want none of such friendship."

But Burke would be no longer restrained.

"You don't want to take us for fools, young man," he said, and his big tones rumbled harshly through the room. "If you shot Griggs in mistake for a burglar why did you try to hide the fact? Why did you pretend to me that you and your wife were alone in the room when you had that there with you, eh? Why didn't you call for help? Why didn't you call for the police as any honest man would naturally under such circumstances?"

"We're trying to save you," the father pleaded tremulously.

Burke persisted in his vehement system of attack. Now, he again brought out the weapon that had done Eddie Griggs to death.

"Where'd you get this gun?" he shouted.

"I won't talk any more," Dick answered simply. "I must see my wife first." His voice became more aggressive. "I want to know what you've done to her."

"Did she kill Griggs?" Burke questioned roughly.

Dick was startled out of his calm.

"No, no!" he cried, desperately.

"Then, who did?" Burke demanded sharply. "Who did?"

"I won't say any more until I've talked with a lawyer whom I can trust." He shot a vindictive glance toward Demarest.

The father intervened with a piteous eagerness.

"Dick, if you know who killed this man you must speak to protect yourself."

The face of the young man softened as he met his father's beseeching eyes.

"I'm sorry, dad," he said, very gently. "But I—well, I can't!"

Again, Burke interposed.

"I'm going to give him a little more time to think things over. Perhaps he'll get to understand the importance of what we've been saying pretty soon."

He pressed the button on his desk,

"Where'd you get this gun?"

and, as the doorman appeared, addressed that functionary.

"Dan, have one of the men take him back. You wait outside."

Dick, however, did not move. His voice came with a note of determination.

"I want to know about my wife. Where is she?"

Burke disregarded the question as completely as if it had not been uttered and went on speaking to the doorman, with a suggestion in his words that was effective.

"He's not to speak to any one, you understand." Then he condescended to give his attention to the prisoner. "You'll know all about your wife, young man, when you make up your mind to tell me the truth."

Dick turned and followed his custodian out of the office in silence.

As the doorman reappeared Burke gave his order, "Dan, have the Turner woman brought up."

The inspector next called his stenographer and gave explicit directions. At the back of the room, behind the desk, were three large windows, which opened on a corridor, and across this was a tier of cells. The stenographer was to take his seat in this corridor, just outside one of the windows. Over the windows the shades were drawn, so that he would remain invisible to any one within the office while yet easily able to overhear every word spoken in the room.

When he had completed his instructions to the stenographer Burke turned to Gilder and Demarest.

"Now, this time," he said energetically, "I'll be the one to do the talking. And get this: Whatever you hear me say don't you be surprised. Remember, we're dealing with crooks, and when you're dealing with crooks you have to use crooked ways."

Then the door opened, and Mary Turner entered. She paid absolutely no attention to the other two in the room, but went straight to the desk and there halted, gazing with her softly penetrant eyes of deepest violet into the face of the inspector.

Under that intent scrutiny Burke felt a challenge and set himself to match craft with craft. His large voice was modulated to kindness as he spoke in a casual manner.

"And there was a struggle?"

"Yes."

"And you shot him?"

"Yes."

"Then, where did you get the revolver?"

Dick started to answer without thought:

"Why, I grabbed it!"— Then, the significance of this crashed on his consciousness, and he checked the words trembling on his lips. "So," he said with swift hostility in his voice, "so, you're trying to trap me, too! You! And you talk of friendship. I want none of such friendship."

But Burke would be no longer restrained.

"You don't want to take us for fools, young man," he said, and his big tones rumbled harshly through the room. "If you shot Griggs in mistake for a burglar why did you try to hide the fact? Why did you pretend to me that you and your wife were alone in the room when you had that there with you, eh? Why didn't you call for help? Why didn't you call for the police as any honest man would naturally under such circumstances?"

"We're trying to save you," the father pleaded tremulously.

Burke persisted in his vehement system of attack. Now, he again brought out the weapon that had done Eddie Griggs to death.

"Where did he go?"

"You ought to know, since you have arrested him, and he has confessed."

"What's the reason he hasn't?"

"Because he didn't do it."

Mary, in her turn, resorted to a bit of finesse in order to learn whether or not Gilder had been arrested.

"But how could he have done it, when he went?"

"Where did he go?"

"You ought to know, since you have arrested him, and he has confessed."

Burke was frantic over being worsted thus. To gain a diversion, he reverted to his familiar bullying tactics.

"Just you wait," he went on cheerfully, "and I'll prove to you that I'm on the level about this, that I'm really your friend. There was a letter came to you to your apartment. My men brought it down to me. I've read it. Here it is. I'll read it to you!"

He picked up an envelope, which had been lying on the desk, and drew out the single sheet of paper it contained. Mary, watching him, wondering much more than her expression revealed over this new development. Then, as she listened, quick interest touched her features to a new life.

"You ought to know, since you have arrested him."

This was the letter:

I can't go without telling you how sorry I am. There won't never be a time that I won't remember it was me got you sent up; that you did time in my place. I ain't going to forgive myself ever, and I swear I'm going straight always. Your true friend.

For once, Burke showed a certain delicacy. When he had finished the reading, he said nothing for a long minute.

Mary's eyes were luminous in the joy of the realization that for her, after all, rehabilitation might be in a measure possible, though nothing could ever repay the degradation of years infinitely worse than lost.

Burke's harsh voice, cadenced to a singular sympathy, broke in on her reverie of pleasure and of pain.

"You knew this?" he inquired.

"Yes, two days ago."

"Did you tell old Gilder?" he asked.

Mary shook her head in negation.

"What would be the use?" she reminded him. "I had no proof. No one would believe me."

"They'd believe this. Why, this letter sets you clear. If old Gilder should see this letter, there's nothing he wouldn't do to make amends to you. He's a square guy himself, if it comes to that, even if he was hard on you. Why, this letter wipes out everything."

Then, the insistent question beating at his brain forced him to speak roughly, building hope on the letter's inestimable worth to the woman before him.

"Who killed Griggs?"

There was no reply. And, presently, he went on, half ashamed over his own intrigue against her.

"Say," he said, and, for once, his voice was curiously suppressed, "you tell me who shot Griggs, and I'll show this letter to old Gilder. Now, listen," he cried eagerly. "I give you my word of honor that anything you say in here is just between you and me." Unconsciously his eyes darted to the window, behind which the stenographer was busy with his notes.

That single involuntary glance was enough for the keen instinct of the woman to make a guess as to the verity.

"Just tip me off to the truth," Burke went on ingratiatingly, "and I'll get the necessary evidence in my own way. Now, there's nobody here but just you and me. Come on, now—put me wise!"

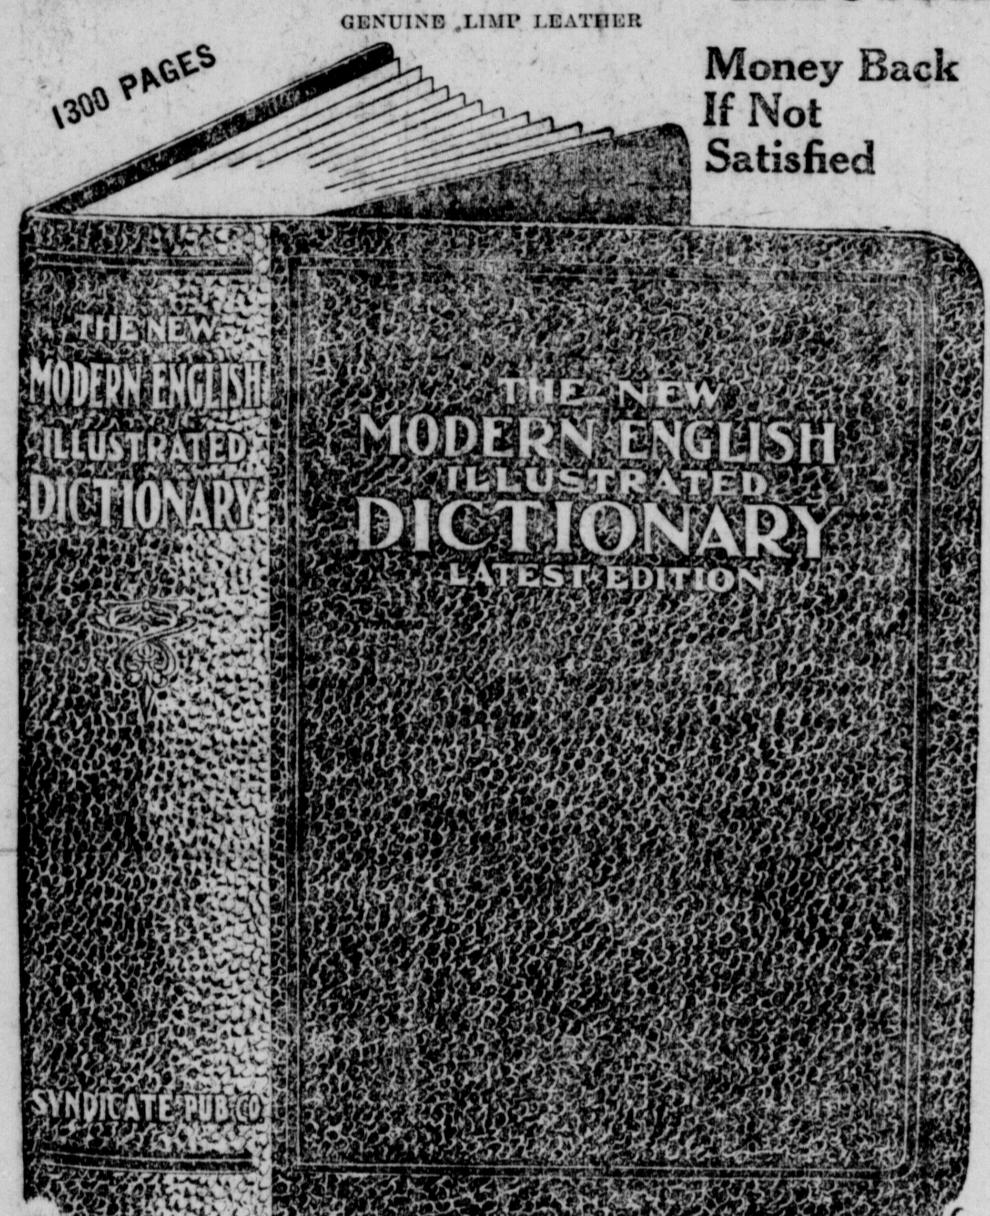

"Are you sure no one will ever know?"

"Nobody but you and me," Burke declared, all agog with anticipation of victory at last. "I give you my word!"

An Imaginary

Feast

A Thanksgiving Day Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE

They had started out in Jack Henshaw's cabin launch for a cruise among the islands, with duck shooting as their object. It was a fair day in November, with an Indian summer warmth that did not hint of a sudden change in the weather. There were six in the party—Frank Carew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hayden and pretty Phyllis Hayden and Jack Henshaw. The three women occupied the cabin of the launch, and the men made themselves comfortable with blankets and sailcloth on deck.

The first day had passed uneventfully, without even a shot at a duck. The second passed likewise, and the third dawned in the same glow of amber haze and ruddy sun.

"It looks very much as though we would have to return without those promised ducks for Thanksgiving day," observed Jack restlessly as he took the wheel after breakfast.

"If it would blow up a bit colder we might bag a few today. If my prophetic instinct serves me right those clouds yonder look like wind and rain." Bob Hayden puffed out a cloud of smoke and leaned lazily over the rail.

"I hope it doesn't storm. If we don't hurry we won't get back to Cromore in time for dinner tomorrow," said his wife.

"What's the matter with Thanksgiving dinner aboard the Nautilus?" asked her owner.

"It would be perfectly lovely, of course, only you know it couldn't seem like real Thanksgiving feast. Everything is tinned or bottled. All the Thanksgivings I ever remember are accompanied by the aroma of delicious delicacies cooking in the kitchen."

"Enough said," returned Jack grimly. "You spurn my invitation to dinner; therefore it is up to me to turn and beat it for Cromore. We will have barely time to make it before nightfall."

They might have done so easily had not those threatening clouds gradually massed toward the zenith and slowly covered the rest of the blue sky. Then came a thick blanketing fog that blotted out the world and left them isolated in a dense white world of dripping moisture.

There was consternation aboard the Nautilus after that. Those November fogs were very deceiving, and it might be many hours, perhaps days, before the mist lifted. If they could keep in the winding channel among the islands they would be all right, but if they missed their way and nosed around outside in the track of the big steamers there was no knowing what would be the fate of the little craft and her passengers.

They anchored for awhile, and then, impatient of the delay that would prevent them from arriving home in time for Thanksgiving dinner, they started out again, feeling their way. Jack Henshaw at the wheel and Frank Carew blowing the siren at intervals. Bob Hayden and the three women remained in the cabin and played bridge by the light of the lamp. It was very cheerful in there, away from the fog.

Jack Henshaw stared at the lighted windows of the cabin and thought rather ruefully that his task would be more attractive if Phyllis Hayden would come out and share his turn at the wheel.

The little Nautilus felt her way among the hidden rocks in the channel that snaked among the little islands, and it seemed that hours passed before the fog thinned sufficiently for them to glimpse the dark bulk of an island near at hand.

With the lifting of the fog, which was driven before a nasty easterly wind, the channel became unpleasantly choppy, changing to dashing waves as the wind increased.

While they debated whether to go on or to make an anchorage among the islands their fate was decided for them. A big wave rushed along the narrow channel, lifted the Nautilus upon its crest and sent her crashing upon the rocks of the nearest island, where she wedged tightly between two boulders.

It all came so suddenly that the duck hunters hardly realized what had happened before Jack Henshaw hustled them ashore with their belongings.

"She's sprung a leak, a big hole in her port bow. We can't do a thing except to carry a couple of lines ashore and fasten them to some of those large cedar trees."

He was hurrying them ashore with their burdens of hastily snatched clothing and bedding. He followed with all the provisions he could gather and later sent the small oil stove from the galley. By scrambling over the slippery rocks they could reach the firm white beach where ancient cedars fringed the foot of the sand bluffs.

Here the women waited while the three men made the Nautilus fast in her cradle among the rocks in the manner suggested by Jack. When all was completed the six pleasure seekers gathered ruefully about their possessions.

"Goodby, Thanksgiving dinner!" said Carew in a hollow tone.

"And nobody knows how soon we may get to Cromore for any meal," added Mrs. Carew mournfully.

Phyllis Hayden and Jack Henshaw exchanged glances of amusement. To them the adventure savored of romance. To be cast away upon a desert island was a novel experience enough, but to be cast away together, these two, who were in love with each other, made that island a paradise.

"Ah, you're a cheerful lot of Robinson Crusoes!" chided Jack at last. "You may never have the chance to be cast ashore again, and you sit here bemoaning because you can't spend Thanksgiving in the conventional way."

"Can't you be thankful without being prodded by the smell of pumpkin pie and roast turkey?" demanded Phyllis scornfully.

"Let us contrive a shelter from the tarpaulins, and you four may sit there and play bridge. Miss Phyllis and I will concoct a Thanksgiving feast for you to enjoy tomorrow."

The others shamelessly agreed to this unfair division of labor, and after a very practical shelter had been constructed against the sloping bluff and under the shade of two wind blown cedars the married people made themselves very comfortable with cushions from the boat and by the light of a ship's lantern played bridge.

In the meantime Jack Henshaw and Phyllis Hayden held several conferences, during which they displayed much merriment and a thorough contentment with their lot.

They fussed around a hastily improvised shelter that Jack arranged for a little kitchen, and there they prepared the evening meal with the aid of the oil stove.

A creditable meal it proved to be, though canned beans formed the principal dish, and other canned and bottled delicacies rounded out the menu.

Morning brought sunshine and scudding clouds across the blue sky. The wind still blew heavily, but from another quarter, and the waves were dashing over the deck of the Nautilus.

The castaways tried to be cheerful, but it proved a dismal failure, except in the case of Jack and Phyllis. Those two seemed to have tapped some resourceful flow of good humor, for they laughed and jested and promised a most inviting dinner for the others, who clung to their bridge playing, now sitting on the sandy beach with their cards.

Jack and Phyllis disappeared and were gone for a couple of hours. While they were gone those left behind heard the report of Jack's gun.

"Ah! We'll have a duck, at any rate," murmured Carew.

"I'm afraid not," said his wife. "I notice that the supply of oil is gone, and the Nautilus is washed over with water. Every stick of wood on the island is too wet to burn. Cold canned beef and crackers and peanut butter will constitute our menu today," she ended drearily.

There was nothing cheering in the sight of Jack and Phyllis returning with a brace of ducks, for there was no fire to cook them by. When this evil news was announced to the young pair they merely laughed and said there was oil enough to boil coffee and heat some beans.

"Dinner's ready!" sang out Jack, and they gathered about the hastily prepared meal.

"I thought it was to be a big dinner with trimmings," remarked Carew as he unfolded a paper napkin and sniffed hungrily at the tinned soup.

To the four older ones of the party it was a ghastly feast. With most unseemly levity Jack and Phyllis insisted on referring to the various tinned foods as though they were delicious viands served at a well appointed Thanksgiving table.

"Do have some more turkey," insisted Jack, passing the tinned beans around.

"And some of the cranberry sauce," added Phyllis, holding up a bottle of tomato ketchup.

"This chestnut stuffing is delicious," commented Jack, nibbling a crisp cracker. "Mrs. Carew, are you not going to pass up the mince pie?"

"I've eaten many a badly cooked meal," observed Bob Hayden bitterly, "and I've partaken of food from Bom-bay to Bangor, but this is the first time I've ever eaten an imaginary meal. It gives me mental indigestion to think of it."

"Then what we all need is exercise!" cried Jack. And, having disposed of the remnants of the meal by tossing them into the swift waters of the channel, he drove his guests before him up the steep bank and into a plowed field.

"This doesn't look like any of the islands I've met around here," marveled Carew, gazing thoughtfully around.

"We went a good deal farther than we realized in the fog. I'll lead you to a place. Well, ladies and gentlemen, welcome to Cromore!"

A surprised shout went up as they found themselves on the hill back of Jack Henshaw's home. A curl of blue smoke from the kitchen chimney bore witness that dinner might be expected there after all.

They looked at Jack for explanation.

"We struck the mainland instead of an island. I haven't been in that spot for years and didn't recognize it till Phyllis and I went out this morning. We shot a brace of ducks, and I believe mother has prevailed upon Chloe to include them in the dinner"—

"A real dinner!" yelled Hayden and Carew in chorus.

"Yes," Jack laughed as the two men broke away pell-mell toward the house.

Mrs. Carew and Mrs. Hayden looked at blushing Phyllis and happy Jack.

"I believe you two have found something else to be thankful for," said Phyllis' mother softly.

WHY DRUGGISTS
RECOMMEND

Vinol For Run-Down People.

If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to supply the demand.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked, and tired women, should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. F. B. Johnson & Co., Druggists, Rushville, Ind.

Mr. Brown began railroad work as a section hand more than forty years ago and is now director of ninety-six corporations.

MINERS VICTIMS OF A DEADLY EXPLOSION

More Than a Score Killed In Alabama.

Acton, Ala., Nov. 19.—Twenty to thirty men were seriously injured in an explosion at No. 2 mine of the Alabama Fuel and Iron company. The explosion occurred as the day's work was about over late yesterday afternoon, and the regular shooting time was passed. Some of the sixty-three men who had been checked in for the day's work had already come out when the detonation caused general alarm. More men came out after the explosion.

Rescuing parties went to work at once and inside of two hours a number of dead and injured men had been reached. Of the first nine men taken out there were six dead and three fatally hurt. The rescue work is progressing slowly.

At the office of the company it was stated that it was hardly possible for more than twenty to have been killed and most of these were white men.

It will be several days before it is determined what caused the explosion and what kind of an explosion it was. The three men rescued alive are unable to give any details of the accident.

This is the first mine explosion in Alabama since the Aberneth accident in August, 1912.

ROOSEVELT GIFTS WORTH $250,000

Wilson Wedding Recalls Last White House Bridal.

FORTUNE IN PRESENTS.

Nellie Grant When Married In Washington Got Gifts Valued at $60,000. Diamond Pendant Presented by House of Representatives to Latest Bride a Token of the Nation's Affection.

Of all the gifts that have come and still are coming to the White House for the wedding of Miss Jessie Wilson to Francis Bowes Sayre none, perhaps, will be more cherished by the fair recipient than the diamond pendant which is the official gift of the house of representatives. The reason for this is that the token is essentially of an intimate, personal nature, having more of an individual and special character than the conventional tea and coffee services with their accompanying silver pieces and embodying in itself a constant reminder of the American people's affection and regard for the latest White House bride.

The pendant, which is made up of one canary diamond weighing six and one-half carats, surrounded by eighty-five smaller diamonds arranged in a peacock shape and attached to a necklace in which smaller diamonds are set, will be presented in a silver casket with the following inscription:

"Presented to Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson by the members of the United States house of representatives, as a token of their affectionate interest and regard, on her marriage, Nov. 25, 1913."

At the last White House wedding—that of Miss Alice Roosevelt and Representative Nicholas Longworth on Feb. 17, 1908—the house did not unite in this manner, but committees and state delegates as well as members individually sent tokens of their own indicating their affection for Congressman Longworth and the White House bride.

The members of the committee on foreign affairs, of which Mr. Longworth was a member, gave a silver and gold loving cup. A punch bowl was presented by the Ohio delegation, despite the protest and the prayers of the Woman's Christian Temperance union and the objection of some of the Ohio congressmen.

Presents From Foreign Lands.
It was President Roosevelt's expressed wish that no foreign governments, as such, should send wedding presents. Several governments, however, had their plans all made before the request reached them.

There was a piece of Gobelin tapestry from the French republic that was deemed perhaps the most beautiful item in the White House display on the day of the wedding. It was delivered in person by Ambassador Jussrand. Art experts said that this tapestry could not be duplicated for less than $25,000.

The Cuban government sent a rope of pearls bought in Paris. It also was appraised at $25,000. In compliance with the president's wishes Germany's wedding present came as a personal gift from Emperor William. It was a handwrought bracelet of Roman gold set with diamonds and sapphires. It was incased with illuminated leather, embossed with the imperial arms of the house of Hohenzollern.

The empress of China, who had received Miss Roosevelt when the Taft party was traveling around the world, remembered her with a dower chest filled with oriental treasures.

The gift of the emperor of Japan was a piece of embroidery and two silver vases. Among the other rulers who sent gifts were the emperor of Austria, the king of Italy and the king of Spain.

Mr. Longworth's gift to his bride was a necklace of perfectly matched diamonds, which he had ordered in Cincinnati several weeks before the engagement was announced. The bride's gift from President and Mrs. Roosevelt was a corsage ornament of emeralds and diamonds.

Gifts Valued at $250,000.

Of course nobody knew exactly the value of all the presents, which numbered about 500, but it was said at the time by those who inspected them that the figure was about $250,000.

The gifts which Nellie Grant received at her wedding were valued at about $60,000.

The presents ranged in character all the way from the Gobelin tapestry and Cuba's rope of pearls to a washbasin, a Boston terrier, potatoes and anthracite coal.

Probably the most perishable of the collection came a very long distance. It was a box of peaches, apricots and plums from Cape Colony, South Africa. It was remarked that apricots of that excellence at that season would cost here about 50 cents a bite.

The Boston terrier came from a Pittsburgh friend of Mr. Longworth. It was not exhibited with the other gifts in the White House.

An estrangement is reported between Prince Eitel Freiderich, second son of the kaiser, and his beautiful wife, and military circles in the grand duchy of Oldenburg, which is the home of the princess, believe the couple have separated and probably will be divorced.

NO STRINGENCY CAUSED BY WAR

selves are now making so many articles the Swiss export. This country has gone ahead in the manufacture of silk goods and embroideries until in those lines it rivals Switzerland for cheap cost of production. For a long time we could not compete with St. Gall, but that was only as long as certain grades of embroideries had to be turned out by hand. Since St. Gall and America have both come to use machines for making embroidery, the exports to the United States have decreased greatly, and that has been especially noticeable the last two years.

"Notwithstanding this, the industry has not been affected in Switzerland. They are turning out more goods than ever, though with this market closing to them they have had to go out and look for others. Now they are shipping largely to the Balkan countries and to South America.

"I have lived for seven years in Switzerland, and I consider it the most remarkable industrial country in the world. It competes in many lines of manufacture with all the great nations of the world; and yet it has no natural resources. It has no coal and no minerals, it has to import all the cotton, silk, coal, and iron it needs, but it has built up and maintains wonderful industries in various lines. The industry of the people and their economic habits have made the country what it is."

A FRIEND TO THE WORKING MAN

Five years ago I was so troubled with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder that I had to cease working my farm. Life looked dark to me until I heard of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root through a cured friend. I tried a bottle and began to feel better at once. After using five or six bottles I felt fine and have continued to work as I had before my affliction.

I want to state that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a kidney medicine that will cure and I owe my good work during the past five or six years to it.

Yours very truly,
